

VMMC celebrates National Infection Prevention and Control Week

The Veterans Memorial Medical Center celebrated National Infection Prevention and Control Week with the theme “Infection and Control: Rising Above and Beyond Adversities” on July 11-15, 2022.

The festivity started off with a short program after the Flag Raising Ceremony at the Basilio Valdes Hall. Dr. Raquel Ecarma and Mr. Redentor Ventura of the Hospital Infection Control Unit (HICU) spearheaded the celebration.

In her opening message, Dr. Ecarma emphasized the importance of controlling and preventing healthcare-associated infections by expanding collaborative work in education, training and research, and quality management programs in infection control. In addition, she encouraged the hospital staff to actively participate in the week long activities lined up by the organizing committee. She also expressed her heartfelt thanks to the management and staff for their cooperation.

The 2nd week of July is designated for this celebration to give an opportunity for the infection prevention and control professionals to promote infection prevention.

Opening Ceremony of National Infection Prevention and Control Week

Dr. Raquel Ecarma in her opening message.

Flu Vaccine for Employees of VMMC

Quiz Bee

Poster Making Contest

HICU Staff